Guest Editorial

By Lou Haddad

This paper is in receipt of a letter which was printed last week in which a citizen bereated Councilman Oscar Lawson for splitting his allegiance. This letter demanded a reply editorially, which follows.

Seems as though Lawson is not only a Seaside City Councilman, but is also retained by 4th District Supervisor Roger Poyner as his administrative assistant. The writer contends that Lawson cannot serve two masters.

Well, we have investigated the issue, and cannot find where it is illegal for an elected official to be employed in another capacity as long as there is no conflict of interests.

However, morally speaking, it appears that there could be such a conflict. Take the county Health and Welfare issue, for example. Mr. Poyner has promised a medical facility for Seaside and it seems that as close as he can get to one is to move the Health and Welfare offices from Monterey to Seaside. In order to do that, he spearheaded a drive to locate the facility on the Pit site.

Assuming that Lawson was on the Council came up, would he abstain from the discussion and the voting, or would he push for city approval?

Interestingly enough, during the course of our reasearch into the issue posed by the writer, we found another matter of two which deserved careful investigation. We hear that he criticized the Chamber of Commerce for utilizing the services of Dee Alsbury as an official for the 4th of July Parade, whose services have been available to the Chamber for years and years. The fact that she moved out of Seaside apparently hasn't diminished her interest in out community, especially in view of the fact that she takes off one week from her job to return here to assist, FOR FREE. Criticism of this sort appears to be inconsistent with Lawson's personal actions. He listed on his "campaign committee" some 140 people, an extremely large percentage of whom do not reside in Seaside. His campaign contributions were from outsiders.

And while we're speaking about campaign contributions and as an aside, a check of Lawson's campaign statement which he signed April 10, 1974 indicates a flagrant violation of the law, to wit: The law specifically provides that any campaign contributions and or expenditures exceeding $500 shall be disclosed. Lawson signed a statement that less than that amount had been received or spent.

WE know for a fact that he or his "Committee" purchased advertisements in the Herald as well as this paper, which doesn't come cheap. Also, we are aware that he mailed out to registered voters a mailer, which according to post office rates, must have exceeded $500 in itself. Printing must have cost a bundle.

He listed himself on the ballot as a "management consultant" when in fact he was manager of an ice cream, pizza and beer establishment. What puzzles us is how can a man who recently retired after over 20 years in the Army be qualified to consult for civilians managerial businesses? Who hired him in that capacity?

Further investigation reveals that Lawson solicited and received campaign contributions from a local businessman who does business with the city, contrary to a new city ordinance enacted prior to his candidacy a copy of which he received from city hall before his solicitation. The businessman reminded Lawson of the new law, yet Lawson assured him that his contribution would be alright.

Seems like we have our own little Watergate going. We found another definition for "politician"; and that is a person who shakes your hand before an election, and your confidence afterwards.

READY FOR THE FAIR — Tami Daoro of Gonzales and her Suffolk sheep are looking forward to the Monterey County Fair July 23-28 at the Fairgrounds in Monterey, where they will take part in the livestock exhibition. Tami, who will be a sophomore at Notre Dame High School next year, will also show exhibits in food preservation and clothing in the new Junior Division Building.

Tax Help For Seniors Is Available

Special assistance is being offered to senior citizens who have not yet filed their claim for Senior Citizens Property Tax Assistance.

A representative will open a temporary office in Monterey at the City Hall, Council Cahmbers, Room 5, 570 Pacific Avenue, according to State Controller, Houston I. Flournoy. Office hours will be 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m., Tuesday and Wednesday, July 23 and 24; 9:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. Thursday, July 25.

The assistance is a reimbursement of a portion of the 1973-74 property taxes paid. Fournoy said. The average payment was $201. Approximately 302,500 senior citizens filed valid claims for 1973 and assistance payments of $61 million were made.

To be eligible for property tax assistance, claimants must be 62 years of age or older as of January 1, 1974; must own and occup their own home; must have paid the property taxes on the home; and must have an income of $10,000 or less.

Qualified homeowners can obtain forms from any Senior Citizens Property Tax Assistance office, at the temporary office noted above, or by writing to Senior Citizens Property Tax Assistance, P.O. Box 1588, Sacramento, CA 95807.

Mayor Attacks Lawson's Actions

Seaside Mayor B.J. Dolan, in a letter addressed to the City Manager, City Attorney and City Council Members, dated June 26, launched a blistering attack upon Freshman Councilman Oscar Lawson for "berating and chastising a city employee", Mr. Cleve Williams, Director of Parks and Recreation.

In his letter, Mayor Dolan referred to another letter issued by him, dated June 26, subject: "Demands by Councilman Lawson."

His letter reads, "Subsequent to issuing letter in paragraph (1) supra, it has come to my attention that Councilman Lawson reportedly committed an additional improper action on June 26, 1974 which involved Mr. Cleve Williams, Parks and Recreation Director.

"Mr. Lawson berated and chastised Mr. Williams on the basis of his congratulatory remarks to Mr. Billy DeBerry quoted in the Seaside Post News Sentinel's issue of Wednesday, June 26, 1974.

"This is yet another example of the continuing intimidation and harassment tactics that Councilman Lawson has been accomplishing as a part of his conduct of daily affairs. This conduct is hereby challenged as improper, and in fact, illegal. Further, these improprieties are in contravention to California Legal Codes.

"Mr. Williams' constitutional principle of freedome of expression cannot be denied or ctiticized by Councilman Lawson just because Mr. Williams happens to be a Seaside City employee. Therefore, this matter is hereby referred to the City Council for its consideration.

"The City Manager is also hereby requested to immediately bring to the Mayor's attention any further improper requests, actions or harassment for referral to the City Council," he said.

Ethnic Studies Scholarship Winner Named

Diane M. Brown, of 443 Casanova Ave., Monterey, was named as the recipient of the Ethnic Studies Division scholarship recently.

Diane, an Administration of Justice major who graduated on June 13th, won the award for her high academic excellence in Ethnic Studies and her major field of interest, including other requirements established by the Ethnic Studies Division scholarship committee.

She plans to transfer to California State University in Sacramento and continue her education for a BS degree in her major.

She has been very active in the community of Monterey, participating in such activities as Voters Registration, Young Adult for Action, and Friendship Baptist Church.

The Ethnic Studies Division scholarship, awarded annually and backed by support from influential citizens in the local community, was established by the staff and faculty at Monterey Peninsula College to assist students of ethnic background in furthering their education at State Colleges and Universities.

Job Discrimination Against Handicapped Is Now Illegal

Discrimination against employees or job applicants because they are physically handicapped has become an unlawful employment practice in California effective July 1.

The prohibition against such discrimination was added to the State Fair Pratice Act through a 1973 legislative amendment which gives the Fair Employment Practice Commission responsibility for enforcement of the new provision. Author of the measure AB 1126, was John F. Dunlap (D-Napa, Solano).

According to Roger A. Taylor, executive officer of the Commission, any FEPC office will receive and investigate bona fide complaints of such discrimination that occur on or after July 1.

"The new amendment," Taylor said, "defines a physical handicap as impairment of sight, hearing or speech, or impairment of physical ability because of amputation or loss of function or coordination, or any other health impairment which requires special education or related services."

Not included in the definition of physical handicap under FEPC policy, Taylor noted, is mental illness, mental retardation or behavior disorders stemming from alcoholism or narcotics addiction.

Additionally, the amended law does not cover an employee whose physcial handicap makes him unable to perform his duties, or to perform his duties in any way endangering his health or safety or that of others. The amendment does not prohibit law enforcement agencies from inquiring into the physical fitness of applicants for peace officer positions, nor require employers to alter their premises to accommodate personnel with physical handicaps.

Taylor said he expected that grievances under the new amendment would be filed immediately, as was true when other amendments became effective. In 1970 prohibitions against job discrimination based on sex were added to the FEP Act, and in 1973, discrimination because of age, years 40 to 64. Complaints based on these two factors now account for more than one out of four cases filed with the Commission.

Complaints of discrimination because of a handicap will be subject to the same procedure as those involving race. color, creed, national origin, sex or age, Taylor said. After a case is docketed, each will be investigated and, if evidence of discrimination is disclosed, attempts will be made to conciliate the case through conferences with the employer. In cases where evidence of illegal bias is clear and no private conciliation can be reached, an accusation of discrimination will be made and the matter scheduled for public hearing.

FEPC enforces its findings through cease and desist orders, and orders to pay damages or wages lost as a result of the discriminatory act.

In general, the FEP Act covers hiring; upgrading; discharge; terms or conditions of employment; job application forms or interviews; help wanted advertising; classification of applicants by employment agencies and referral to openings; and admission to union membership, dispatching and the like.

Exempted from requirements of the law are employers with fewer than five employees, social clubs and fraternal, charitable, educational or religious associations or corporations not organized for profit. The term "employee", in the handicap provision does not include an individual employed under a special license in a non-profit sheltered workshop or rehabilitation facility.

The FEPC also administers the California law prohibiting discrimination in housing. Its offices are located in San Francisco, at 455 Golden gate Avenue; in Los Angeles, at 322 West First Street; in Fresno, at 2550 Mariposa; in San Diego, at 1350 Front St., Room 3012; and in Sacramento, 926 J St., Room 211.

CHP Predicts Record Traffic This Weekend

The California Highway Patrol predicts extremely high traffic volumes during a four-day period beginning Independence Day Eve and estimates total travel will be in excess of three billion miles.

CHP Commissioner Walter Pudinski warned that in many locations gasoline will be hard to find at night or on Sunday and urged holiday drivers to consider the fuel availability factor when planning their trips.

He also believes that more campers, boat trailers, motorcycles and other recreational vehicles will be on the road than ever before in California history.

State Issues Warning On Fireworks

The California Department of Consumer Affairs warns consumers to use caution in handling fireworks when celebrating the Fourth of July.

The traditional Independence Day celebration, complete with food, games, and fireworks, often ends in tragedy and destruction, simply because the consumer is not alert to potential dangers. In their enthusiasm for a relaxing evening of sparklers and fireworks, parents may neglect the close supervision of children, thinking it is all just harmless fun. Not so! The U. S. Consumer Product Safety Commission estimates 6,500 persons were treated in hospital emergency rooms last year for fireworks-related injuries--and most were children under 15.

To make July 4, 1974, a safer holiday, the Department of Consumer Affairs urges consumers to consider the following safety tips in the supervision and handling of fireworks:

1) LOOK, when purchasing fireworks, for a license permitting the salesman to operate a booth. In California fireworks may not be sold door-to-door, and all salesmen must display a license to maintain a street-side booth.

2) CHECK each item, box, or bag of fireworks for the State Fire Marshal's Seal of Approval required by California law. The seal indicates the fireworks meet with basic safety standards, but it is not a guarantee against accidents.

3) BEWARE of dangerous and illegal firecrackers such as "cherry bombs". These are explosives, though not available through licensed sources, are marketed illegally from door-to-door or through word-of-mouth. They are a major cause of loss of eyesight and limb.

4) NEVER leave children unattended when lighting fireworks. Be prepared to douse fires with an ample supply of running water.

A nationwide ban on firecrackers and stricter safety regulations on fireworks in general, proposed by the Consumer Product Safety Commission, have been deferred pending a public hearing. Though these stricter regulations will not be in effect for this year's celebration, consumers should not be any less cautious.

City, County Get State Funds

State Controller Houston I. Flournoy has distributed $1,096,000 to counties, cities, school districts and special districts in the first reimbursement of extra costs caused by higher limits on death benefits in workmen's Compensation cases.

"When the 1973 Legislature amended the Labor Code to increase these death benefits it mandated new costs for local government entities," Flournoy said. "Therefore, $1,096,000 was appropriated to meet the initial claims against the State General Fund."

The first claims, based on estimates made by the local governments for the period January 1, 1974 through June 30, 1974, totaled $1,330,847 which exceeded the appropriation by $234,847.

The first reimbursements were made as pro-rata shares of the appropriation. Adjustments to the actual costs of the opening period will be made when the local governments are reimbursed for their estimated costs for the 1974-75 fiscal year. Claims for 1974-75 and subsequent years must be filed on or before October 31 of each year.

The new legislation increased the benefits payable to dependents of deceased employees from $25,000 to $40,000 in cases of total dependency; from $28,000 to $45,000 for a surviving widow with one or more dependents; and from a maximum of $25,000 to a maximum of $40,000 in cases of partial dependency.

Today's Army NEWS By SFC Jose Garcia ARMY RECRUITER

The sign on the road says you can operate your rig at 19. Few believe it. When you're young you are skeptical of signs that say you can do things you know very well you cannot. You are only slightly less cynical of people anxious to tell you the same things.

That's all changed now, as young people who managed to discard their cynicism and their skepticism are discovering. There are jobs for people who want to operate their own rig. There are jobs for young people who want to be responsible for a whole office of equipment. There are jobs for young people who want this thing called responsibility to increase in direct proportion to their ability to handle it. it's just a matter of knowing where to look.

Take maintenance work for example. There are plenty of persons who enjoy fixing things. Some of them are pretty good at it. In fact, some are downright great. The good ones all have that instinctive feel for a mechanism that sets them apart from the rest. Fixing things come as easy to them as identifying a G chord does to Carole King. All most want is a chance. Industry is able to provide very few chances for young people without experience. Those with a certain amount of experience are generally able to do quite well. It's getting the experience that is the trick. That's why more and more young people are starting to look to the new U. S. Army.

Maintenance Specialists in TODAY'S ARMY find themselves exposed to a wide variety of responsibilities, from assisting equipment operators to advising supervisors of potential problem areas and, even in some cases, recommending improvements in certain areas.

TODAY'S ARMY is offering a newer and more attractive package of options, benefits and travel opportunities to prospective enlistees than ever before. A young person in TODAY'S ARMY does so at the rate of $326 a month. In addition, they are provided with free room and board, complete medical and dental care and 30 paid vacation days annually.

Registration for the second semester of the Monterey Peninsula Unified School District's high school summer session will be held the week of July 1.

Cedric Jasper, summer school director, said students entering grades 10, 11 or 12 may register at Monterey or Seaside high schools daily between 9 a.m. and noon. The schools will be closed for the July 4 holiday, however.

Construction Inspection Board Appointed

A new California board to register construction inspectors is now underway – the first of its kind in the United States.

Established by law on October 3, 1973, the Board is responsible for the certification and regulation of all California building inspectors and will determine proper requirements for all building codes. Department of Consumer Affairs Chief Deputy Director Frank Reynolds swore in the 12 members of the Board of Registered Construction Inspectors appointed by Governor Ronald Reagan to serve four-year staggered terms:

President Eugene Wieczorek, Los Angeles, chief of construction administration for the architectural and engineering firm of Daniel, Mann, Johnson and Mendenhall; Vice President Edward J. Gray, Castro Valley, owner of Tectonic Associates, a construction management and inspection firm; Edward R. Fisk, Irvine, civil engineer and director of Construction Services Engineering; Darrell J. Wipf, San Francisco, electrical engineer and vice president of Mel Cammisa Consulting Engineer; Howard E. Grahn, Santa Barbara architect; Edward D. Weyand, Sacramento, president of Sacramento Roofing and Insulation Company; Marvin S. Winders, Los Angeles, mechanical engineer and vice president of operations for Engineering Supervision Company; Jack S. Barrish, Sacramento, consulting civil and structural engineer; Orlando M. Ciabattoni, Santa Barbara, responsible for all construction inspection of classrooms and office buildings at the University of California, Santa Barbara; Robert G. Cox, Oakland, facilities representative for Kaiser Foundation Hospitals in northern California; Sergio J. Zilli, Hayward, sales engineer for Ameron Pipe Products Group; and John C. Canestro, Hayward, City of Hayward building inspection division

Kenneth E. Gray, former assistant executive secretary with the Board of Nursing Education and Nurse Registration was appointed Executive Officer of the newly-formed board.

Aeronautics Board Gets First Woman

Experienced aviatrix Madine Carpenter was appointed today by Governor Reagan to become the first woman member of the California State Aeronautics Board.

A veteran of more than 2,000 hours flying time, Mrs. Carpenter holds instrument, commercial, multi-engine, flight instructor and ground instructor ratings.

She placed in three of the four transcontinental air races she has flown in between 1964 and 1972. She won the Palms-to-Pines Race last year and the Vixon-Frist Race in 1967.

A resident of Newport Beach, Mrs. Carpenter has flown extensively throughout California, Mexico, Baja California, the United States, Hawaii, Australia and New Guinea.

She is a 13-year member of the "Ninety-Nines, Inc.," an international association of women pilots, the Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association (AOPA), and the Baja Bush Pilots.

A native of Northerheastern Oklahoma, Madine graduated from Roseville High School, Roseville, California, and in 1957 from Sierra College, Auburn, California.

Madine is the wife of State Senator Dennis E. Carpenter, R-Newport Beach, who is also a pilot.

Highway Budget Is Reduced

The California Highway Commission today approved a reduction of $21 million in the 1974-75 State Highway Budget.

The Commission had approved the budget last October. Commission Chairman Winston Fuller said that the reduction was based on lowered estimates of anticipated revenues since that time.

The revised budget also reflects inflationary costs in major construction, honor camp work, and the program for applying a thin layer of pavement on roadways to improve their riding qualities and reduce maintenance costs, and normal changes in work schedules.

Fuller said that funds for right of way acquistion and lands and buildings had been reduced while money has increased for local transportation planning, the safety roadside rest program, and the elimination of railroad grade crossings.

BIG CELEBRATION IN SEASIDE

These past few weeks have been very busy at the Chamber, since we have been working on parade preparations, invitations, handling phone calls and selling tickets to the Drum and Bugle Corps Contest being held on July 6 at 7 p.m. at the Monterey Peninsula College Football Stadium. These are major events in Seaside and we hope that lots of people will turn out to enjoy the festivities.

First, bring the family and enjoy delicious pancakes. sausage and beverage, at the annual Chamber Pancake Breakfast, from 8 to 11:30 a.m. on Sunday, July 7, in the Auto Center in Heitzinger Plaza, near Butts Pontiac-Cadillac, Graham Buick-Opel and Principal lincoln-Mercury.

After the parade, concessions will be set up in the same place. There will be a chicken barbecue with all the trimmings, sponsored by the Retired Men's Social Club; the Boy Scouts Troop 161 will sell hot dogs, popcorn, candy and soft drinks, the Kiwanis Club of Seaside will sell peanuts during the parade; the Filipino-American Community Club will sell Filipino delicacies; and there will be a performance by the Community Choir.

By the way, the Pancake Breakfast is only $1 for adults and 50 cents for children under 12. A bargain for a great breakfast and a chance to get together with friends. Hope to see you there.

The parade begins at 1 p.m. at Hilby. They will march up Fremont to Broadway, turn west and disburse at Calaveras into the Auto Center. Over 200 units will participate...floats, bands, drum and bugle corps, beauty queens, antique cars, mounted units, clowns and much, much more.

'Hair' Returns To MPC Theater

The Broadway smash-hit musical "Hair" will be brought back to the main stage theater by the Monterey Peninsula College Players during the month of July, a return engagement prompted by the overwhelming success of the production earlier this spring.

Play dates for the summer drama are Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, July 4-6 and succeeding weekends July 11-13, 18,20 and 25-27. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m. and admission is $2.50 general and $1.50 for students and military in the MPC Theater.

The original American tribal-love-rock-musical, Morgan Stock chairman of the drama department and director of the production, described "Hair" as being "against big givernment, established religion, war, oppression of any kind. It's for free speech, free love, and freedom from unnecessary restraiits."

"Hair" has been one of the largest productions to be undertaken by the MPC Players. It played to sell-out houses for six consecutive weekends last spring and was held over two weeks beyond its original schedule.

Monterey Peninsula Heral Drama critic Steve Hauk wrote of the production: "...I love Hair's beat, its audacity, its fullness of life. Its theatricality. Also, its ability to oke fun at itself and what it stands for...Its rare, extremely rare to find so many talented singers in an amateur production."

Nearly 50 drama students will be involved in the production and most of the original cast of main characters will be returning. Steve Barns will play "Berger," Sid Cato as "Claude," Nancy Servies as "Sheila," Jane Evans as "Jeannie," Audrey Swanson as "Crissie," Bob Scancarello as "Woof."

Reserved tickets are suggested and can be arranged by calling the MPC Theater Box Office at 375-0455 between the hours of noon and 1 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m.

Letter To The Editor

Editor:

I am an inmate confined in the London, Ohio Correctional Institution, serving a sentence of one to five years for the crime of burglary.

I have been here for quite sometime without correspondence from anyone except an occasional letter from my attorney. I was wondering if you would consider running an ad or printing this letter in your newspaper, explaining my situation, that I am in need of some friends to correspond with?

I would like to correspond with mature adults, but would answer all letters. I am a white male 35 years old, have brown hair and brown eyes.

I have no family left to correspond with, and have lost all contact with friends during the time I have been here, which usually happens after a few years in a place such as this. This place at best is an awfully lonely place, but especially so when you receive no mail.

I would appreciate it very much if you would consider printing this letter. I know it might not be your policy to print a letter such as this, but in my situation I knew of nowhere else to turn.

Any help and consideration you may give me concerning this matter will be greatly appreciated.

Thanking you in advance,
Kenneth W. Dodson

Report Says There Are Jobs Available For Unemployed

Two facts now appear fairly evident. The skilled worker looking for work will do much better in the country areas than in the big cities. For the unskilled worker, location makes little difference, as there is practically no demand any place for the untrained, according to the National Federation of Independent Business.

These conclusions emerge from the third quarterly study of a selected panel of the membership of the National Federation of Independent business by Faculty Associates with a research team headed by Dr. Richard M. Bailey of the University of California at Berkeley, and Dr. William C. Dunkelberg of Stanford.

Despite an increasing rate of unemployment, this study conducted for the NFIB finds that there are still jobs going begging, and in fact more jobs than at any time since last October.

Of the panel respondents 23 report they have job openings they are unable to fill at the present time, as compared to 20 per cent who reported unfilled jobs in January and 30 per cent last October.

However, only two per cent report they have any job openings for unskilled labor, which is 50 per cent drop from last October. Only in manufacturing and in the agricultural sector are there more than the average jjbs open for the unskilled, and even in these categories, there has been a marked decline since last year.

Of the total respondents 71 per cent are located in non-metropolitan areas, or population of less than 100,000. Only in the wholesale sector is there a substantial percentage, 48 per cent, in the metropolitan areas, and only 13 per cent of them report unfilled jobs.

In contrast 70 per cent of the construction firm respondents to the NFIB survey are in the country areas, with 26 per cent of them reporting they cannot fill the jobs they have open currently. In the independent transportation sector 75 per cent are in the country areas, with 26 per cent of these respondents reporting they are unable to fill the jobs they have available.

While the percentage of the respondent manufacturers in the country areas drops down to 62 per cent, in this sector 25 per cent report they cannot fill all the jobs they have open.

Allied with the demand for skilled labor, and the almost non-existent market for unskilled labor, is the continued concern of the independent respondents over the quality of labor.

The respondents to the NFIB sponsored survey show that concern over the quallity of labor ranks along with taxes as a major problem of the independent business sector.

This is taken to indicate that although many are holding down jobs that call for skills, their level of the skills is not up to what is considered a reasonable standard.

This concern over the quality of labor is highest in those vocations where higher skills are normally needed. In the construction industry 19 per cent of the respondents give the quality of labor as their major concern, ranking it in second place as the major problem. In manufacturing 17 per cent of the respondents give quallty of labor as a major concern.

In the non-professional services, which takes in repair services, and similar occupations, the quality of labor is a concern to 14 per cent of the respondents, tying for second place with taxes as the major problem.

While Faculty Associates do not probe into the causes of jobs for skilled people going begging while unemployment rate increases, past surveys by the National federation of Independent Business indicate the independent business people think there are two prime causes.

One is the control of apprenticeships exercised by the unions which has created a drive for placing unions under the antitrust laws.

The second major focus of blame is placed on the current educational system with many business people feeling there is too much emphasis placed on so-called academic subjects, and not enough on the varied aspects of vocational education.

While the first problem, that of employing the antitrust laws to end control of the supply of skilled people by the unions is a Federal matter, the question of an expanded program of vocational education is considered a state matter.

In some states substantial work is being done on vocational education, and in others, resistance by academically-oriented educators so far appears to be a major block.

Not yet ascertained by NFIB studies is the impact, if any, that the recently enacted increases in the minimum wage is exercising on the employability of the unskilled.

Surveys conducted by the business organization following the last minimum wage increase showed that there was a substantial reduction in such jobs.

But regardless of this factor, these facts remain. One is that there are jobs going begging because there are not the people with the skills to handle them.

The second major fact is that while many big cities report unemployment rates much higher than the national average, the available jobs today are outside of the big cities.

Receives Accreditation Renewal

The Monterey Institute of Foreign Studies has received a five-year extension of its accreditation from the Western Association of Schools and Colleges.

Fulton Freeman, MIFS President, announced the notification of the accreditation from the association. The Western Association of Schools and Colleges is an accrediting commission for senior colleges and universities in the states of California, Hawaii and the Territory of Guam.

The Institute first held classes in the summer of 1955 with thirteen students registered for the summer session and a faculty of three instructors. Early classes met in the classrooms of the Carmel Mission School. Since then, twenty years later, the school has its own modern campus furnished with the latest electronic equipment in its language laboratory and an auditorium that is equipped for simultaneous interpretation into four languages.

The enrollment for the 20th Summer Session has increased to 200 students for the intensive summer language program with a total enrollment of 400. The faculty now consists of 25 full-time professors with another 25 instructors teaching on a part-time basis.

The Monterey Institute of Foreign Studies is a private, fully accredited upper division college and graduate school. It grants B.A., M.A. degrees and the California teaching credentials.

The Monterey Institute of Foreign Studies has been an affiliate of NK ETHWOOD Institute, whose main campus is in Midland, Michigan, since 1973.

Talcott Wants More Help For Senior Citizens

Inflation is creating such acute problems for Senior Citizens, Congress Burt L. Talcott urged Congress to sponsor additional legislation for the aged.

Talcott said, "I have taken this action because 21 million senior citizens were deprived of the opportunity to have their interests represented in the House when the Democratic Caucus deferred action indefinitely on the comprehensive proposal to reform the committee structure of the House."

He advocated "a single, Select Committee on Aging should be established which would take an overall look at the comprehensive income, housing, transportation, health and pension problems for people over 65."

Bill Would Abolish PrimaryElections

Among the rash of "clean-politic" bills ensuing after Watergate is one by Representative Al Ullman of Oregon which would eliminate state primaries and state conventions for nomination of presidential and vice presidential candidates and also abolish the electoral college.

A nationwide poll conducted by the National Federation of Independent Business found 62 per cent of its member business people in favor, 29 per cent opposed, with nine per cent undecided.

In California, the response was 64 per cent in favor, 26 per cent opposed, and 10 per cent undecided.

The Oregon Congressman would provide that voters over the nation would vote at one time for the candidates to be submitted to the electorate in November, at that time the candidate with the majority of the total vote would win.

Among the arguments advanced for this legislative measure, according to the NFIB is that with candidates not obligated to enter all state primaries, selection of the candidates is largely left up to the nominating conventions with the result that the most popular candidates are perhaps not always selected.

The major argument against the proposed legislation is mainly based on the convention concept, with the viewpoint that without national nominating conventions, the structure and effectiveness of the political parties would be weakened.

CMA Offers Guidelines To Improve Emergency Care

California Medical Association has called for — and offered guidelines for — improvements in emergency medical services in California.

A primary responsibility for emergency medical services rests with public health authorities, since government often provides first aid, transportaion and communication services.

Legislation is needed to set standards and appropriate funds for implementation of emergency medical care policies and programs; CMA will support such legislation, and some already has been introduced into the Legislature.

"Physicians, as individuals and through their medical societies, must provide leadership and guidance to the implementation of such legislation that is passed, and to the organization and delivery of emergency medical care."

Dr. Moore expressed CMA's concern "that emergency medical services be available to all citizens of California" and pledged that CMA "will continue in every way possible to promote improved emergency care."

He noted that CMA's activities in the field of emergency services were formalized in 1968 with the establishment of an Emergency Medical Care Committee, which has been working extensively with government and private groups "to bring about progressive changes in the field."

CMA's position paper on emergency medical services was developed by the committee, he said, "as a guide to policies and priorities of emergency medical care for all who look to the California Medical Association for leadership, including component societies of the CMA county emergency committees, hospitals, municipalities, business and industry, the California Department of Health, and state and federal legislative bodies."

The CMA guidelines make recommendations in six major categories:

Rescue and first aid. CMA recommends that basic first-aid training be required in all junior and senior high schools; that advanced training be required for law, fire and rescue personnel; and that standards be set for paramedical emergency medical technicians and training programs for them to be funded.

Transportation. Standards should be set for the training of ambulance personnel; on all emergency runs there should be at least one emergency medical technician in addition to the driver; the state should subsidize, to the extent required, ambulance services in rural areas.

INSECT INFO

Tomato Hornworm

He has a ravenous hunger. And his horn looks vicious. But the four-inch hornworm can only harm by devouring your tomato crop. He's also fond of eggplant, pepper, potato, and tobacco.

Nature provides him with camouflage. If you're not looking for him, you might miss him entirely. He's green with eight white stripes and a protruding "horn."

Life Cycle

The tomato hornworm overwinters as a two-inch spindle-shaped pupa. In May or June it emerges as a moth, with a four-to-five-inch wing span.

As a moth the hornworm will do no damage, but will deposit round greenish-yellow eggs, one to a place, on the under side of leaves. The eggs hatch in three to four weeks, and the larvae (caterpillars or "worms" stage) feed voraciously for about a month while growing to a full four inches in length.

When full-grown, the tomato hornworm burrows about four inches into the soil to spend the winter in the pupal stage. In the South, this stage lasts only three weeks before another moth emerges. This moth lays eggs to form another generation of worms to attack plants late in the season.

Control

In the past, gardeners have had to use chemicals to rid themselves of hornworms and other leaf-eating caterpillars. Today, fortunately, there is a new control. DIPEL®, a biological insecticide, is uniquely effective. It kills leaf-eating caterpillars, but does not harm humans, pets, birds, and beneficial insects.

You spray it on tomato plants and other vegetables, just like a conventional insecticide. Take care to get good coverage, since this bacterium works when it is eaten by caterpillars. When the worms chew on treated leaves, the active ingredient of DIPEL, Bacillus thuringiensis, paralyzes the gut-wall. The caterpillars stop feeding immediately, and death follows within a few days.

Because of its selectivity, Bt is a "natural" for use on vegetables. You can spray, pick, and consume the same day.

DIPEL also controls cabbageworm, inchworm, gypsy moth, cabbage looper, and most other leaf-eating caterpillars which attack trees, shrubs, ornamentals, and vegetables.

Older Eyes Need More Light

by James R. Gregg, O.D.

(Dr. Gregg is professor of optometry at the Southern California College of Optometry, Fullerton, and also a noted author and lecturer. He has been a trustee and is a past president of the California Optometric Association.)

If you are over 60 you may wonder at times if they aren't making lightbulbs less bright than they used to. Rooms may seem darker at night and reading may be a little more difficult.

The problem, however, is not the lightbulbs, but your eyes. While the eyes are tough instruments of sense perception which do not yield readily to stress and strain, normal changes in vision do occur throughout a person's lifetime, particularly with advancing age. Some of these changes can be helped by lenses, others cannot.

For instance, older eyes need more light. Over age 60 a person usually needs twice as much light, and the amount should be doubled again by the 80's. Adjustment to dim light is also slower as time goes by. To compensate for these natural losses, older people should use more light and take more care at night in poorly lighted areas.

Also, all eyes progressively lose the ability to focus. This change begins at about age 10 and continues at a fairly uniform rate until no focusing power remains in the 60's. It happens to everyone. No diet, exercise, or amount of luck can alter the pattern.

This natural focus loss is why reading glasses or bifocals become necessary. Putting off use of lenses will not prevent the decline, but only prolong the period of blurry vision.

Young nearsighted eyes can expect some increase in the degree of nearsightedness for a few years, although some cases remain surprisingly stable. Astigmatism, a distortion of vision, will fluctuate somewhat throughout life, with the changes generally small and unpredictable.

Farsightedness decreases in youth, but tends to increase in middle age. This is why lenses may become necessary for some drivers who had driven for years without them.

Optometric scientists have not yet proven conclusively whether these refractive changes can be controlled. Contact lenses hold some promise as a form of control, but many consider the evidence inconclusive. All agree, however, that new lens prescriptions are essential to keep up with changes and maintain the best visual performance.

The sensitivity of nerve elements of the visual system declines with age, more rapidly after 60 than before. The normal loss in sharp vision can be as much as 20 per cent. Special magnification aids may be needed if the loss is excessive or work demands are particularly severe.

But all is not grim about vision and age. The brain can compensate somewhat, since its ability to make sense out of visual images improves with experience. And with average health, ample light, and lenses when needed, vision can generally perform most adequately for long years of retirement.

SMOKEY SPEAKS OUT

HOW TO BURN DEBRIS SAFELY.

Everyone wants his home and property to look clean and well cared for. Therefore we often gather up old branches, dried leaves, weeds and trash. But before we burn them, there are some important rules to remember.

ALWAYS CHECK BEFORE BURNING. There are some places in this country where open trash fires cannot be built. And there are other cities where there are special laws that must be followed. So always be sure to check with your local fire department or forest ranger before you burn unwanted trash. A safe fire leaves your property clean, and your home safe.

USE A SAFE INCINERATOR. A safe incinerator means safe burning. Especially for old newspapers and loose trash, which should never be burned in an open fire. But before you use an incinerator there are a few important things you should check.

Always make sure that leaves, grass or anything else that might catch fire, have been cleared for at least 10 feet around the incinerator. Then inspect your incinerator to make sure there are no cracks or holes. This way you'll be sure no sparks can escape. Also, be sure that the screen or spark arrester covering your incinerator is the kind recommended by your local fire department. And that it's in top shape, without tears or holes.

PREPARE FIELDS BEFORE BURNING. People who live in cities aren't the only ones who burn debris. Often farmers and ranchers have to burn weeds or brush in their fields. And since open field burning can be dangerous, there are a few simple steps to follow.

Always check with your local fire department or forest ranger and lookout tower before burning. They can help you keep an eye on your fire if necessary.

Never burn on a windy day, and before you burn be sure to plow a wide fireline around the field. Always keep firefighting tools and water spray tanks handy since they can help you control flames that might otherwise get away. And never leave the fire, not even for a minute.

Please. Follow these simple rules the next time you burn debris. That way you'll be sure your property will be clean, well cared for and safe from fire.
